

A map of Cherokee County, Georgia, showing its boundaries and surrounding counties. The county is divided into several towns, each marked with a black dot and labeled: Cherokee (the county seat, marked with a larger dot), Larrabee, Marcus, Cleghorn, Meriden, Aurelia, Quimby, and Washta. The map is bordered by four counties: O'Brien to the north, Clay to the northeast, Buena Vista to the east, and Woodbury to the southwest. The map includes a scale bar (0 to 8 km and 0 to 4 miles), a north arrow, and a legend indicating the map is in the Mercator projection.
